Many courses also provide learner materials and resources that help you gain a more comprehensive understanding of the topic.

Who Should Enroll

These courses are designed for:

Professionals looking to advance their careers, fill a knowledge gap, or transition within the CRE industry.

Individuals dedicated to continual performance improvement to bolster their career pathway or increase their value to their organization.

Organizations seeking to provide internal training to educate and empower leaders and teams.

Your Role as Facilitator

If you are facilitating registrations for your organization, you may be wondering what you'll need to do. Connect Professional Development will work with you during the registration process so that you may continue to focus on your daily job requirements. You can be involved in the learning process as little or as much as you want. Depending on your organizational goals, you can leverage the courses in two ways:

Option 1

You can choose to let your team work independently on completing the courses on their time as they are self-paced. Once the course is completed, the learners can provide you with a completion certificate that may satisfy your organizations requirements

Option 2

You can act as a guide and create a synchronous learning environment that fosters discussion and shared experiences. Learners would complete the course at the same time and upon completion, you may facilitate group discussions reviewing the content and encourage critical thinking.

No matter what your organizational goals may be, Connect Professional Development courses will provide a culture of professional development and lifelong learning that is crucial to your organizations success.
